UNIVERSITY DEPARTMENT OF PSYCHIATRY 4TH YEAR PSYCHIATRY ATTACHMENT

General Information

This handbook is intended to orientate students during their fourth year psychiatry attachment.

Welcome

Welcome to the psychiatric module of the Mind and Movement semester. You will be attached to us for four weeks, in addition to receiving a series of clinical skills lectures during the first week of the semester.

Overall, we aim to teach you the acquisition of clinical skills relevant to psychiatry as well as helping you learn about major psychiatric disorders. As psychiatry is multi-professional and multi-dimensional, we encourage you to think socially, psychologically and biologically about the problems you are going to learn about. Your attachment in psychiatry will offer you the opportunity of working with non-medical team members and to understand how a multidisciplinary team works. You should make every effort to participate in this.

Skills Acquisition

You need to ensure that you acquire the necessary clinical skills during your attachment. These are:

- Principles and components of history taking and mental state examination.
- Examination of cognitive function, examination of psychotic phenomena.
- Examination of mood and assessment of suicide risk.
- Ability to take a history of alcohol and substance abuse.

Skills Validation

There is a self-assessment schedule on page 7 of the handbook. In addition, your clinical teachers will review your skills acquisition with you.

Patient Contact

You are expected to clerk two patients per week and over the four weeks to see one or two patients from the following diagnostic categories:

Two people with schizophrenia (preferably one acute & one rehabilitation)
Two people with depressive disorder
One person with bipolar disorder
One person with dysthymia, anxiety disorder or other neurosis
One person with dementia
One person with alcohol or substance misuse

Clerking Validation

There is a form on page 6 for the record of patients clerked. This form (along with the record of skills acquisition) is to be sent to the Medical Education Manager, Samantha Abbott at the end of your attachment, and a copy will be forwarded to the Undergraduate Dean.

Knowledge

Overall, the content of your new knowledge should be focused around the PBL cases. These are of dementia, affective disorder (including deliberate self-harm), schizophrenia (including other psychoses) and alcohol/substance misuse or aggression.

Attendance

One of your learning objectives for this attachment is to develop professional responsibility. Your teachers have gone to considerable trouble in organising your attachments. Thus attendance at all clinical sessions is compulsory and you are expected to attend all teaching sessions arranged for you. Failure to attend is both bad manners and poor professional conduct. As the Dean has asked to be informed of poor professional behaviour, attendance registers will be kept. If you cannot attend a session, you should inform the consultant or senior doctor running the session.

Undergraduate Textbooks

You are required to read background material. The PBL book has a recommended reading list and your clinical teachers will be able to give you additional advice.

Safety

It is important that you are aware of various aspects related to your own safety. Most patients with psychiatric problems are not violent or dangerous. However, a small number of patients who are acutely psychologically disturbed may be violent or aggressive. If you are seeing a patient on any of the inpatient wards, before you see the patient please check with a member of staff that the patient is safe to be interviewed alone. You should not see any patient by yourself whom the ward staff are concerned may be potentially violent. You may see that patient in the company of other health professionals if this can be arranged.

You must not visit a patient in his or her home in the community unless a member of staff accompanies you.

You may visit patients at day centre's or residential units.

When you interview a patient, always place yourself between the patient and the door of the interview room. If at any point you feel uneasy or alarmed during the interview, end the interview immediately and leave. Most potentially violent situations can be defused. If the patient becomes angry, do not contradict the patient or try to argue with him or her. Try to make understanding statements, and if these do not work then suggest that the interview should be stopped.

Clinical Teaching

The consultants to whom you are attached will arrange teaching for you. Broadly speaking, this will consist of teaching on ward rounds, new patient clinics, follow-up clinics, multidisciplinary team meetings and home visits.

In addition, most consultants will arrange at least one tutorial a week with one of their team members.

You are also strongly encouraged to spend some time with members of the multidisciplinary team (for example, community nurses or occupational therapists).

Confidentiality

All students working on placement within the NHS are bound by a legal duty of confidentiality to protect personal information they may come into contact with during the course of their work. This is not just a requirement of contractual responsibilities but also a requirement within the Data Protection Act 1998, Freedom of Information Act 2005 and a Professional Code of Conduct. Please ensure you are familiar with the GMC Medical students: professional values and fitness to practise with regards to confidentiality.

This means that employees and students are obliged to keep any person identifiable information strictly confidential e.g. service user, carer and employee records. It should be noted that students also come into contact with non-person identifiable information which should be also be treated with the same degree of care e.g. business in confidence information such as service user referral letters, discharge summaries, waiting list data, consultants work loads, clinic lists etc.

Definition of Confidential Information

Confidential information can be anything that relates to service users, staff (including non-contract, volunteers, bank and agency staff, locums, student placements), their family or friends, however stored.

Please view the full confidentiality policy on the Trust intranet:

<http://www.mhsc.nhs.uk/pages/Departments/Informatics%20and%20Development/Information%20Team/Policies%20and%20Guidelines/Confidentiality%20Code%20of%20Conduct.pdf>

A copy of this will also be made available on Medlea.

Failure to adhere to such policies/professional codes of conduct may result in a GMC referral.

Communication and Dress Code for Medical Students University of Manchester

'Graduates must be able to communicate clearly, sensitively and effectively with patients and their relatives, and colleagues from a variety of health and social professions. Clear communication will help them carry out their various roles, including clinician, team member, team leader and teacher'.

'Tomorrows Doctors'

2002

All medical schools, clinical and non-clinical teachers and medical students must respond to the guidance from the GMC set out in 'Tomorrows Doctors', which sets the standards for undergraduate medical education in the U.K. It has been shown that non-verbal communication is at least as important as verbal communication, so how a student or doctor appears to patients, relatives or colleagues means as much as what he or she says. It follows from the GMC guidance that students (and doctors) must, in professional settings:

- Dress in a manner that adds to, and does not detract from, effective communication. How he/she appears as a student professional or a doctor is something all students and graduates must consider and respond to. In general, male and female students should be clean and smartly dressed. Thus the following are not permitted as they are deemed to be incompatible with effective, sensitive communication:
  - Wearing a tee-shirt with slogans
  - Visible body art
  - Large amounts of body and face jewellery
  - Revealing clothing that may be considered unacceptable by patients
  - Covering most of the face. This is true not only in clinical settings but also throughout the educational elements of the undergraduate programme, which is built around group work with other students and tutors

In addition, the convention of some clinical units may require wearing white coats or other approved clothing. Hair should be tied back if it interferes with, or adds risk, to a clinical interaction

- Students must be able to participate fully in communication and other skills training, discussion and assessment. As well as adhering to the dress code above, it means being able to interact fully with patients, standardised patients, teachers and examiners of any cultural or ethnic background or either gender.

Additional Teaching Sessions

You must ensure you make full use of these extra sessions. Should you experience any difficulties in accessing sessions please contact Samantha on 0161 720 2905 or e-mail sam@manchesterpsychiatry.net Students can attend any of the sessions regardless of base hospital. Most services can only accept a maximum of 1 or 2 students per session, so please reserve your slot early.

Additional Teaching Sessions – Continued

Affective Disorders: (MRI) You will be introduced to a case, & view the patient's notes. Following this you will sit in while the consultant interviews the patient. You will join the MDT meeting to discuss the patient's treatment options, and then join the consultant as he feeds this information back to the patient. For further information or to book a session please contact Kirsten Bond on 0161 276 6763

Library: There are library facilities available on the 2nd Floor of the Rawnsley Building at the MRI, on the Ground Floor of the ERC at Wythenshawe (0161 291 5778) and in the Postgraduate Centre at North Manchester. These are in addition to the facilities at the Education South Centre at the MRI.

Memory Clinic: (Laureate House) You will join the MDT discussion/meeting where patient's prognosis, test results, treatment etc are discussed. For more information or to book a place please contact Geraldine on 0161 291 6942. Sessions are held on Friday mornings, two students may attend.

Liaison Psychiatry: (Park House) You will join the SpR in the Rheumatology clinic on a Wednesday morning 10.00am to 12 .00pm where you will gain an insight into liaison psychiatry. To book a place please contact Karen Marsh (Dr Longson's secretary) on 0161 720 4867

Early Intervention Service – Laureate House. To sit in on outpatient appointment on Tuesday 13.30pm to 17.00pm. Will sit in on two new patient appointments where new referrals are assessed for suitability and two follow up appointments. Contact Nicola Bowles on 0161 277 6845 or nicola.bowles@rdash.nhs.uk to book in and ensure clinic is running. Will accept only one medical student at a time.
